3. What happens next

1. Evaluation. The Commission will now evaluate your submission. It is complete when it includes the information and documents required by paragraph 12 and evidence of payment of the registration fee (paragraph 13(1)).
2. Decision within 30 days. Within thirty (30) days of receiving a complete submission, the Commission will either issue a Registration Certificate bearing a unique OGSERC registration number (paragraph 13(1)(a)) or notify you in writing of any missing or deficient information (paragraph 13(1)(b)).

3. Deficiency notice. If you receive one, you must supply the information within fourteen (14) days, or your submission will lapse and you will be treated as not registered (paragraph 13(2)).
4. Provisional registration. If the Commission has not acted within thirty (30) days of receiving your complete submission, you are provisionally registered from the next day, and the acknowledgement number above serves as your registration number (paragraph 13(4)).
5. Verification. Authorized officers may inspect your installations, meters and records on not less than forty-eight (48) hours' notice (paragraph 22).
6. Refusal only on stated grounds, after written reasons and fourteen (14) days to respond (paragraphs 13(3) and 20).

4. Your obligations in the meantime

(a) Registration is not a licence and does not authorize any activity that requires one (paragraph 11(3)).

(b) Notify the Commission in writing within fourteen (14) days of any material change in the information submitted (paragraph 16(1)).

(c) Information claimed as commercially sensitive is treated as confidential until the Commission decides the claim (paragraph 15(3)); personal data is processed under the Nigeria Data Protection Act, 2023 (paragraph 15(4)).

(d) As you are not licensed, you must apply for the appropriate licence or permit by 20 January 2027. Until it is decided, maintain safe and continuous supply, connect no new customers and extend no network without written approval, and charge no tariff above that in force on the Effective Date (paragraph 18).

This acknowledgement is not a Registration Certificate.

Yours faithfully,
